They Say.

But can they prove the story true? Suspicion may arise from naught, Why count yourself among the "they,"

They say—But why the tale rehearse, And help to make the matter worse? No good can possibly accrue From telling what may be untrue; And is it not a nobler plan To speak of all the best you can?

Why need you tell the tale of woe Will it the better wrong redress,

Or make one pang of sorrow less? Will it the erring one restore, Henceforth to go and sin no more. They say-Oh, pause and look within, See how thy heart's inclined to sin;

Watch, lest in dark temptation's hour

Thou, too, shoulds't sink beneath its power, Pity the frail, weep o'er the fall, But speak of good, or not at all.

It so happens that these disturb. ers of the peace—these assassins and murderers—whom it has devolved on Judge Logan to punish, are Democrats, and hence the purpose to punish him by impeachment. He has traced these detestable characters to their Dens, brought them forth to the light of day, broken up the Dens, and caused punishment to be inflicted on the guilty. If the Dem- without extra copy. ocrats of that State were not in sympathy with these masked conspirators, they would thank Judge Logan for what he has done, instead of impeaching him.

The excuse trumped up by the press, freight prepaid, for $7 00 each. Democratic leaders, that he is not competent to discharge the duties of his office, is all gammon. They know better. If Judge Logan had favored these masked assassins, and had so acted as to conciliate the Democracy, they would have pronounced him a good judge and a clever gentleman. He is to be impeached solely because of the good he has done to society in breaking up the Kuklux Dens in his circuit. Such is Democraey .- Wash. Chronicle.

Written for the Star. Township Expenses.

As much has been said at different times, and it is no doubt believed by many persons, that the Township system of government is more ex pensive than the old County Court system, which being particularly urged, as making a necessity why the Constitution should be changed.

I, therefore, beg leave to present to your thoughtful and deliberate consideration, the following statement of the expenses of Logan's Store Township, hoping that all the Townships in the County may report their several expenses, and should it prove more expensive, and less useful, than our former system; all just men will be in favor of returning to the old system of County

The Township of Logan's Store went into operation, August 20th, 1869, and up to August 20th, 1871, the entire expenses was $52,00 for Messrs. Editors: Everything here is in a buzz. There is never any business done until after the holidays, and up to this date there has been little cry and no wool. The President's message is a masterly document, thorough a petition, it would be signed by going, logical and radical. After reading the accounts of the unparalleled fire in the unfortunate City of Chicago, and hearing of the fires in the wooded districts in Wisconsin, we had began to think ourselves extremely blessed to see nothing of the kind occur in our little hamlet, when our hopes er the coldest, our wishes were doomed to fall; for on the morning of the 5th unst, a very destructive fire broke out in the residence of Gen. E. Bryan of this town, consuming the entire building, with nearly all its furniture. It also damaged the County Court House, and a building belonging to Miss S. Hamilton, but owing to the efficient services of U.S. soldiers belonging to "C" Troop, 7th Cavalry, and a few of the citizens, it was kept from doing any serious damage to the two last mentioned. From the Hearth and Home. Happy Marriages.

We have spoken of unhappy marraiges. It is but fair that we should give the other side a turn. Few people, comparitively, are unhappily wedded. The great mass of married people are donb; less happi r than they would be single. They have their "ups and down.' They have some pleasant journeying and a good deal of rough road, but they manage to escape serious breakdowns, and are on the whole thankful that they are not positively unhappy. There are many comfortable matches. There are a few positively happy ones. It is really melancholly to see how some people just miss of felicity, chiefly because of selfishness_not open, willful selfishness, but selfishness in a thousand disguises.

You say, Augustus, that you and your wife are not "adapted" the "fellows" that you go with. vile retort ready.

ellion

And yet that is your opinion. It is in your half-dissatisfied face. You say it to yourself-you say it to your wife. Do not look startled. You have said it to her a hundred times. You wish she would read more, or you wish she would read less; you wish she would stay at home, or perhaps you wish she would go out. You tell her so in a way that says she does not quite satisfy you. You praised Miss Hardreader in talking to your w fe the other day. There was no harm in that. Any woman who can not bear to hear her husband praise another woman is-well, that is neither here nor there. It was the way in which you did it. Your manwife better if she were more like Miss Hardreader. We do not say anything about the unfairness of your hasty comparison, your lack of consideration of the difference of circumstances, your gross injustice. Let us admit that it would improve your wife to be more like your friend. Never-But now it's like a blooded horse, theless, if you had not been a selfish egotist, you would not And yet I can't fill out my days, I have said this even by your manner. You say by your whole air I'd rather use my legs and hands that you are the head of the firm, and that what you need is a wife suited to you, and what does your wife need but a hasband suited to her? Suppose you had set yourself to work to "adapt" yourself-I use your own locution-to adapt your tastes, your Five hundred dollars for a bull! it habits, your feelings, to those of your wife. If you were not self ish, you would have seen that her happiness is of quite as great moment as your own. And when you began to "adapt," she Sleep in the summer in the shade, in might have learned a lesson from your example, which she has fail-I'd rather do the thing myself, and ed to learn from your words. And two people might have been as happy as the happy people in Well, I suppose I'm old, and yet tis novels, if they had not thrown their felicity away-a sop to their selfishness.

When will people learn that they will never get attention by exacting it—that they can never make people love them by being disagreeable? If we were only people happy as we are ourselves! The really happy marriages do not come from adaptation chiefly. No feeler of bumps can match people to order and guarantee felicity. An eminent phrenologist married his daughter on a theory of adaptation, and there was a divorce suit in a few years, The really happy marriages are often incongruous enough in their appearance to outsiders. We have known people apparently opposed in taste, widely different in age, who gave evidence of being genuinely happy in each other's society, simply because either was ready to sacrifice to the oth-I never lost a foot of land, and that's er's happiness. Hopkinsianism taught that one could not be saved until he was willing to be damned. It is true that a husband or wife can not achieve domestic felicity unless he or she is willing to endure unhappiness for the sake of the happiness of another.

A New Vice.

The London Lancet calls attention to the enormous manufacture of the new sedative drug, chloral. It seems that it is sold by tons a week, and quotes a letter from Baron Liebig, affirming that one German chemist manufactures and sells half a ton every week. Of course, no such quantity is used in medicine, and the Lancet seems afraid that it gets into beer; but there is a simpler explanation, as it will find on inquiry. Taking chloral is a new and popular vice, particularly among women, and is doing at least as much haim as alcohol. The drug is kept in thousands of dressing cases, and those who begin its use often grow so addicted to it that they pass their lives in a sort of contented stupefaction. Chloral drnnkenness will soon be an admitted variety of the species and will hardly be less evil in its effects than opium eating or the drinking of n'oxicating liquors.

"On Saturday, there came to the meeting from a mountain circuit, on which he is a 'supply,' a man of most wonderful powers. Born in the mountains of North Carolina, the son of a methodist preacher, surrounded by no other refinements than the true refinement of religion, he grew to manhood without education. Without a single grace of elocution, without any pretence to polish or elegance, his grand thoughts were like huge nuggets of pure gold thrown out by the rude minor from a Calito nia vein.
